We individually and collectively create value systems that all aim toward the same goal, which is the realization and Remembrance of unity with our One Infinite Creator while incarnated as a human being.

Improve our relationships through Tarot.

 02 *****

When we live intimately with someone, this really relates in so many ways to how we are with everyone.

When we discover a way to truly improve our relationships with each other, then there is really no question about what happens to us.

We are social creatures and have the need for intercommunication of the companionship with other people.

We cannot grow closer to the Divine when we do not include other people because in order for us to really accomplish a true relationship or unification with the Divine, we need each other.

Our specific paths that we are required for a specific time in our growth involve so many elements that we cannot really compare, but we can take notice that there will be a time that comes when we have to learn how to really get along with each other.

There will come a time when we really have to express and live the teachings of Unity between the Divinity and ourselves.

Some of the relationships we create among each other can be fighting mad but we need those relationships in order to discover more about ourselves.

From the magical love attraction to another person and from the hellish of what appears as incompatibility to the highest degree, both experiences are needed.

This is inevitable and we discover by the practice of love, unity, and understanding on how to get along with each other.

We all have beautiful souls of equality from the same Source of Creation.

We all have different aspirations while we are incarnated as humans, but we eventually will grow toward the ability to watch others, engage, and discern on how much capacity that individual has for achieving higher goals of understanding toward unity.

The idea of wanting unity with our Creator must be ensured from us all and this includes the complete realization for unity of life.

Through countless incarnations, we all have been grown through experience and experimentation to determine what is worthwhile and what is not worthwhile.

Let us remember that today's highest value we have achieved eventually becomes tomorrow's lowest value that needs to be melted down.

Values do not change through simple agreements within ourselves or others, but values will change when our heart cannot find fulfillment in the appearances from without.

We eventually discover that material things or external concepts such as abundance of money does not bring that heart desire or longing once we get it, and this can feel illusive for our minds.

There is a huge difference between having an abundance of money and being abundant.

To have this discovery that abundance of money is just a gateway to explore our desires and eventually we come to the realization and true discovery of abundance probably took many experiences and incarnations for us all.

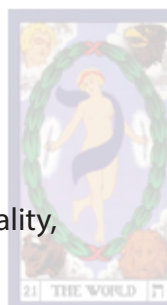

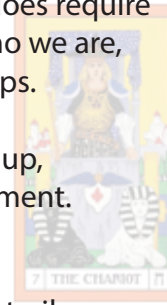

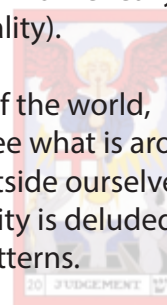

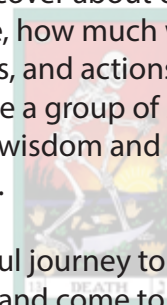

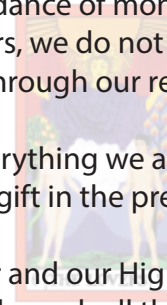

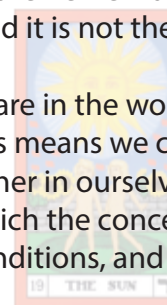

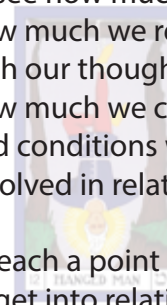

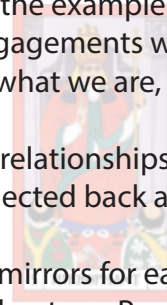

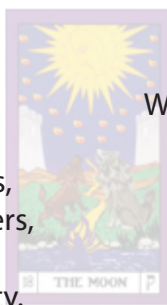

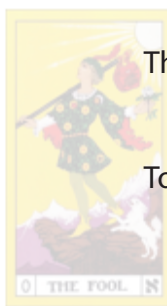

Even with the example of abundance of money that does require engagements with others, we do not know who we are, or what we are, except through our relationships.

It is in our relationships that everything we are shows up, reflected back at us as a gift in the present moment.

We are all mirrors for each other and our Higher Soul will put our Personality through all the various trails to see how much we discover about ourselves, how much we really love, how much we can discriminate with our thoughts, words, and actions, how much we can handle a group of situations and conditions with the wisdom and knowledge involved in relationships. We must reach a point in our soul journey to really position ourself to get into relationships and come to realize the potentialities involved for our own personal growth and self discovery, to the Remembrance of who we really are (and it is not the personality).

When we are in the world and of the world, this means we can not see what is around us either in ourselves or outside ourselves, which the concept of unity is deluded with duality, conditions, and habit patterns.

When we are in the world and not of the world, the Remembrance of unity radiates from us for we know who we really are and ultimately we do know that duality is a delusional state of being within our consciousness.

Beauty glows from the heart and the soul.

Beauty has nothing to do with the physical features and when we have this beauty from within, it will shine until the day we release the body and then this beauty will shine even more strongly because we do not die.

We are immortal beings and our body is a vehicle for our soul to create experiences.

The beauty from within will continue to shine and we as souls will carry this vibration, which it is not ever lost and will not diminish.

Even if we reincarnate into another body, this beauty will continue to shine and not dim, although sometimes it may seem gone and our personality has the thick veil of forgetting for who we really are with the illusion created from our senses.

The complexity of our soul contracts are for another topic, but the main point is that we carry this beauty from within ourselves and it is part of our individual signature vibration that we share with others and to the world.

Once again, this is why our relationships with each other is that everything we are shows up, reflected back at us as a gift in the present moment.

Tarot will guide us in and through our relationships so that we do not fall into delusional traps that we create within the subconsciousness.

Tarot will guide us toward the ultimate meaning which has been echoed through time and space of "Know Thyself:"

What does knowing oneself really mean?

It means that we will clearly know how to think, speak, and act, and what to think, speak, and act, and even when to think, speak, and act.

When we really reach the point of knowing ourselves, which is a moving force and constantly evolving, we will become aware of our own real thinking and feeling.

Therefore, within relationships, we would be able to become aware of the other person's thinking and feeling so that we could fulfill their needs.

If we don't know ourselves first, then our relationships with others will reflect ourselves from the other to provide the opportunities for us to see ourselves.

If we cannot see ourselves in others, then how can we know ourselves?

If we cannot hear ourselves in others, then do we really know ourselves?

In relationships, we are constantly projecting impressions upon others while simultaneously being receptive to impressions which symbolically can create fire.

Do we want to create a wildfire or a campfire in our relationships?

How do we respond to wildfires?

Most of us run for our lives!

How do we respond to campfires?

We gather together and form a circle to enjoy the warmth.

They are both fires, but create different reactions from ourselves and others.

An out-of-control wildfire is only dangerous because it is not self-contained and creates a path of destruction.

The campfire is self-contained and controlled, yet produces the opposite reaction and has a more gravitational response of love from the same raw power that created destruction.

This is why we need the great cleansing of the subconsciousness and Tarot will guide us to this freedom.

Tarot stirs awareness and subtleties that will wake up the energies that which was not awake before in relation to our own selfhood.

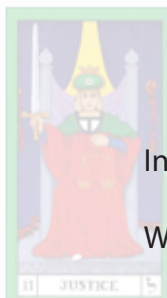

To know thyself is required to the degree in order for us to properly use discernment and reason that will create a powerful broadcast full of beauty that can receive the frequencies with clarity from cosmic consciousness, which is Key 21 of the Major Arcana.

 05 *****

We can travel through the 22 Major Keys which are 22 principles of expressions of consciousness that the symbolic imagery will have an impact on the deeper part of our mind and our hearts.

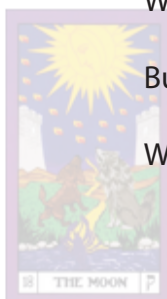

When we have the willingness and the ability to look into our own hearts, to see all the darkness and potential that resides within, to confront the shadows that have been created from conditions and habit patterns, to know that we are all a growing flower but not yet finished, then we are well on our way to finding the beauty within that is so desperately and patiently waiting to become a beacon of light to shine forth into the world.

In relationships, we are not to fix anyone.

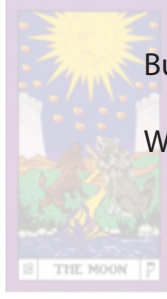

We are not to save anyone.

We are not to control anyone.

We are to try and understand others.

But we cannot understand others until we understand ourselves.

When we can see the lowest of the low within humanity that has a little spot in our hearts that we can relate to, such as murder, greed, jealousy, but when we are able to know that the highest of Divinity is also within our hearts, both gives us the ability to have relationships with others.

Only to the degree that we know ourselves can we know another.

Only to the degree that we know our own needs, can we know what others need.

When we have this capacity to recognize ourselves in others, we become more available to provide a little bit of comfort or a safe space, so that others can slow down, to know that it is ok, and to have the opportunity to choose a different way of exploring themselves.

To improve our relationships with each other is inevitable and no one is exempt.

We might as well begin now.

We have the methods through Tarot that are presented to us to help awaken our own self awareness such as the subtle feelings and desires.

When we go within and sort through ourselves and discover that all of the expressions of humanity that range from hatred to love, from sin to grace, are in each one of us, then we create the powerful realizations that we are all the same.

We are all One.

This gives us the capacity to then project the highest of realizations such as love, joy, and grace to others with just a look, or through a touch, and within our thoughts.

When others who are in our presence, they might not completely understand the sensations because of the subtleties, but deep down within, there will be a stirring of energies that provides them with opportunities for self discovery to remember who they really are.

This happens because we know the sorrows, we know the loneliness, we know the hurt, we know the fears, we know the insecurity of aloneness.

We are able to provide the other with the acknowledgment of being understood.

When this genuine understanding is transmitted, the other will become receptive and more relaxed, which allows from deep within their soul that has been frozen with fear or rejection, a warmth that let's them know that it is ok.

They will begin the opportunity to recover themselves.

They will begin to realize they are not alone.

They will begin to develop courage to face their fears.

They will begin to remember that they are love even within the darkness that has created a shell around their heart.

When we have this knowing, we are able to bring others into fuller expressions of what they thought was unobtainable but really is the miracle within that is patiently waiting to surface.

When we realize that we all share the same hope, we all share the same desires, we all share the same fulfillment, we all have the same yearnings, then we can present ourselves to others, in relationships or with brief encounters, and know that their projections whatever degree that is transmitted, is the same that is within all of our hearts.

We can achieve this state of consciousness which Tarot can bring going through the various states of awakening.

Our relationships with each other is a reflection of the degree to which we know thyself, to the degree of we remember who we really are.
